Who to make business with

With Exder EDI, you can trade with a wide range of customers, including ICA, Coop, Axfood, Konsum Nord, Sandvik and Åhléns. EDI flows to connected customers are tested, verified and in operation. You work the same way with all customers, and Exder EDI ensures that the right message goes to the right customer in the right format.

How Exder EDI works

1. Enter information on your products and prices in Exder EDI.
2. Your customer sends an order from his system in the form of an EDI message to Exder, which sends you an e-mail informing you that an order has come in.
3. Log on to Exder and confirm the order, with or without changes. An order confirmation is sent to the customer as an EDI message.

4. Print out order and pick lists as needed. You can also print package and pallet labels with SSCC and bar codes in an ordinary printer.
5. Register sent deliveries in Exder and a delivery notice is sent electronically.
6. The invoice is also sent electronically.
The message flow described here is an example. The flow may vary depending on the customer.

Exder EDI includes the following

Support for maintenance of articles and prices, processing orders, order confirmation, notice of delivery, invoicing and return packaging, and printing out labels.

Secure EDI communication via X.400, FTP, SMTP or HTTP/HTTPS.

Exder lets you grow

It's easy to add additional functions so you can use Exder as a complete web-based enterprise resource planning system.
